WHY CHOOSE NEVCO?

Experience –

- For nearly 80 years, Nevco has provided the industry with some of the most innovative display and scoring solutions.
- Today, Nevco scoreboards, message centers and video displays are used to enhance the fan experience at events in more than 100,000 locations around the world.
- Some of the largest video scoreboards, including the largest football video scoreboard in the world of high school sports (Carthage High School, Carthage, TX) have been designed and built by Nevco.

Quality –

- Nevco is known in the industry for making products that last. (We even have some customers still using Nevco scoreboards manufactured over 30 years ago.) Nevertheless, Nevco includes a 5-Year Guarantee on our products at no additional charge, and extended warranties are also available.
- Our company has one of the lowest costs of warranty service in the industry, which means that our customers rarely need to call us for warranty repairs.
- When you compare other products to Nevco's, pixel for pixel, you find you get more for money with Nevco. For video displays, Nevco video uses real pixel technology – not shared or virtual pixels – which gives you a brighter, more vibrant picture. Nevco scoreboards use true-size digits (18" digits are actually a full 18 inches tall) with more pixels in our digits and indicators than other competitors. This Nevco quality gives you a higher quality image and a better looking display and scoring solution.

Turnkey Project Management –

- Nevco's time-tested and proven project management process defines roles and responsibilities, so everyone clearly understands their part. From the factory to the installers, from electricians to IT, everyone is on the same page.
- While every project has unexpected bumps, the Nevco process minimizes delays, helping you complete your project on time and on budget.

Solar power is available for multiple small baseball, football, soccer and multisport scoreboard models. Each Nevco solar power kit is specifically engineered to work with your scoreboard and designed for all weather conditions.

Plus, a Nevco solar kit may be a much more cost-effective option than running power lines to your soccer field.

INDUSTRY STANDARDS

All Nevco display and scoring models are tested to ensure quality and design standards are met. In addition to internal testing procedures, Nevco may supplement the testing of any model by applying for one or more of the following designations:

A UL listing indicates the safety of the product has been independently examined and evaluated by Underwriters Laboratories and has earned the right to carry the UL mark. As part of the listing, the manufacturer must agree to and participate in periodic and unannounced factory inspections by UL to ensure standards are being met. A CUL mark indicates the product has been examined and tested by Underwriters' Laboratory to the National Safety Standards of Canada. A CSA listing is equivalent to the CUL mark. CSA listings are issued by CSA International. Many municipalities require one of these listings to meet building codes.

The CE mark is placed on products compliant to the New Approach Directives of the European Union. The CE mark proves to buyers that the product fulfills all the essential safety and environmental requirements as defined in the European Directives.

The FCC mark is placed on products compliant to the Federal Communications Commission standards. While wireless devices are required to be certified by the FCC, all electronic equipment must meet standards for limits on emissions of harmful radio interference. The FCC mark proves to buyers that the product fulfills all the essential environmental requirements. Industry Canada monitors and approves all wireless devices and electronic equipment sold in Canada.

The ROHS (Restriction on Hazardous Substances) standard limits the amounts of lead (Pb), mercury (Hg), cadmium (Cd), hexavalent chromium (Cr (VI)), PBDE (polybrominated diphenyl ethers), and PBB (polybrominated biphenyls). The ROHS standard was set forth by the European Union and adopted by the state of California.
